Sermon on

The Church of the Loving
God.

Therefore the church
should be alive.

I enquired diligently
of ~~The~~ Lord and he said unto me. Go
unto this people
and speak to them
concerning my church.

(1) The Church and Human Welfare.

(2) The Church Static
or Dynamic.

(3) The Church in the Vanguard of Life.

(1) The Church is human.
Made of human individuals worshiping and serving God together.

Possesses all human weaknesses. Christ the Head of the Church.

If we follow not Christ
then we go astray.

I would not give much for your Religion
unless it can be seen.
Lamps do not talk; they shine. A light-house
sends no drums, it beats no gong; far out over the lonely water its friendly spark is seen by the mariner. So, let your actions shine out your religion. Let the main theme of your life be illustrated by your conduct and it shall not fail to be illustrious.

What has the Church
to say about world
conditions today as regards human welfare

12 Church Static or Dynamic.
Story of Rockefeller men.

When man needs
the Church most is
when he thinks he can get along on his own steam. When he has come to the point where he can say to himself
"I have laid up much
goods and can take a
rest" then is the time
he really needs to do some self appraisal.

Yet the church is human
too. Built on human relationships with God. How else but that it have all the weaknesses of humanity

has written:

The church will invariably reflect the outlook of its members.
If we treat God as a static God our church will be static. If we relegate God into the background of our lives our church will be there too. Our religion should be the most vital part of us. The part most alive, most discerning and above all revealing us as humans
dedicated to the service of God. When that is true our church becomes dynamic and alive
because whether we think it or do not bother to think at all, God is a living God. We can make him a dead God
in our own minds but it is we who die, not God.

The Church in the Vanguard of Life.

If the church is going to live fully to the glory of God who made it. It must keep in the vanguard of life. Not a one day a week affair. The successful business man of today's world must keep abreast of all scientific achievements or at least have a rudimentary knowledge of how science affects his business. Yet who endowed the scientist with knowledge. Who equipped that individual with extraordinary powers of concentration and discovery.

Moses in the wilderness bringing water from the rock to a thirsty people must have seemed to them as the scientist of today seems to many of us. Yet Moses

Concluding Prayer

Our Father who makest
all things new, we would share with thee
thy purpose for the world.
We pray that something like thy love and concern may grow in our hearts.

For what thy church is able to do in behalf of a more kind and just world, we are grateful.

Reveal to us more
clearly thy purpose
and inspire us to labor
and give more freely
of the blessings which thou hast given us.

May we be drawn into fellowship with all
the peoples of the earth and belong truly to the Church of the Living God
Amen.

Gave God the credit.

It is for us to decide whether or no ~~the~~ church shall be in the vanguard of Life, showing to the world the true source of all the wonderful gifts we have and helping peoples the world over how to make use of them and how to be of service to the source of all discovery, all power, our Father God.

The Cross. A little sermonette.

There once lived a man, a most industrious fellow. He worked hard all his life and built himself a fine business and estate. He was a regular church "goer": Gave to God what he considered God's due. He helped those who could help him, in return. He held in scorn all those who were not financially successful in life. He had little use for reading except the local news paper. Of course he read his Bible, when he had time, however he was very careful not to soil the gold edges with too many page turnings.

Then one day he became ill and dreamed that he was drowning.

He called for help and all his friends came running. The two of them tried to push a golden cross out to the drowning man but it sank and nearly dragged him down with it. Then on the shore appeared a group of men in shabby clothes and called to him "bear up friend we'll get you out. They linked hands making a human chain and soon had him on shore but when he got breath enough to thank them his dream changed and all he saw was a simple ~~wooden~~ wooden cross floating on the water.
