

ANARCHY BUILDERS .

We are wise beyond all learning,
In this world wherein we live.
They Systems that we treasured,
Are themselves beyond a doubt
Useless encumbrances that most could do without.

Ignorant men in public office,
Their sole idea to fill their purse;
If not their wallets, then their image
'Tis hard to say which is the worse.
Their's is but the bright reflection
Of the public stance behind,
We, the people who elect them,
Are seldom of a constant mind.

Who can sail a ship of state
When the crew are torn with doubt ?
Who can pilot true the course
When the buoys are moved about ?
No one but a fool would muster
Courage to attempt the task,
When from a million throats
Come a million different answers
To, "What is it that you ask?"

We will not heed the record ,
Written plainly for our ken,
We watch a nation in it's death throes
But still believe vindictive men.
How can the truth then still be living
When we trust not what we see,
Or do we look with eyes that watch not
When we shout prosperity!

No nation can be prosperous
When it's head is sunk in slime,
Where the future lives in gutters
And a vote costs but a dime
When promises are but broken pledges
To be shrugged aside when due
And a strangler is the leader
Of a dangerous wanton few.

Then what good is all our knowledge
All the pulpit prate and fire
When to win is all essential
And we idolize the liar.
Loose the bonds of federation
Or remake them if you will

But do it quickly, do it soonly
E're a brother's blood we spill.

We are steeped as much in getting Over and what's set us free give
All the systems that we treasure
Beyond a doubt
But man-made encumbrances
That most could do without.
