

The Voyage

When the ship of life at the end of life
Glides out the harbour mouth
Sets sail toward that ocean
Which knows no north or south
Nor east or west but a voyage that must be made
On to a wider sphere no shoal to halt or mar ^{Nor true to carry its}
For the Pilot at the helm has no need of guiding star ^{He alone will}
His the hand that guides us, we have no control ^{that}
His the knowledge that brings us
Safe ~~on's~~ every shoal
Till we come to rest in a harbour
Not made with human hands
And our searching spirit resteth
From all this life's demands.

The winds of heaven blow over the ship
They billow her sails to the full
The heartbreak of those who ^{lovingly} watch
From the ever receding shore
Wodening waters rolling with ever their sullen roar
^{The} ^{watchless} they too will make the journey
No man can tell them when
Only faith strengthened by parting from loved ones
A surging reassurance like pain
The Master has promised us rooms all prepared
They are waiting for those who set sail
They wait for those lonely mourning behind
God's Plan and His Promise will ever prevail. — 9.?

The voyage

When the ship of life at the end of life
glides out the harbour mouth
sets sail toward that ocean
which knows no north or south
Nor east or west but a ^{journey that has to be made} steady sailing.
On. On to a wider sphere no shoal to halt or mar
For the Pilot at the helm ^{has} needs ^{of} no guiding star.
His the hand that guides us, (and we have no control
His the knowledge that brings us
Safe thru every shoal
Till we come to rest in a harbour
Not made with human hands
And our ^{searching} ~~striving~~ spirit resteth
From all this life's demands.

The winds of heaven they beckon. ^{her}
They billow ^{her} south to the full.
The heartbreak of those who watch
From an ever weeding shore
Across the widening waters with all their sullen roar.
They too will make the journey
No man can tell them when
Only faith strengthened ⁱⁿ by parting from loved ones
Is answer to ~~pitious cry~~ ^{Reassuring} ~~Answer them now~~ ^{again}
The Master has promised a room to prepare
They are waiting for those on the ^{setting} ~~ship~~ sail
They are waiting for those left mourning behind
God's plan will always prevail.
